Waveland commission requests new appointees

By DENA BISNETTE Vayeland Planning and Zoning Ston has decided to request the appointment of two new members.

According to Chairman Charles Dickson, the decision was based on a continuing problem with attendance at the commission's last six regular meetings. On at least one occasion, a special meeting had to be called because there was not a majority pre-to be presented to the Waveland Board of Aldermen at its regular monthly meeting this week.

"We're not recommending anyone specific," Dickson explained. "We'll let the board of aldermen decide who to appoint."

"We understand that our members may not be able to make it to every meeting, but when absences conti-

Drug defendants sue DA, sheriff

By DENA BISNETTE

Virginia Gilbeau' and Gregory Ladner, who were arrested in April on drug-related charges, have requested a temporary injunction barring their pro-secution in Hancock County Circuit

Defendants named in the civil action include District Attorney Cono Caranna II and Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

Gilbeau and Ladner allege in the suit that Peterson and Caranna conspired "to present certain distorted and limited testimony on or about March 26, to a grand jury convened at that time in Bay St. Lödis" while aware that plaintiffs had been promised immunity from state charges in exchange for cooperation with law enforcement agents. The text of the civil action, filed last Thursday in Southern District Federal Court in Biloxi, states that Gilbeau and Ladner were approached by law enfor-ment agents March 24 and were offered misdemeanor charges in exchange for cooperation in contacting other possible defendants in a case involving the sale

The agents included Peterson and Drug Enforcement Agency personnel John Chase and Eddie Dickey.

Guilbeau and Ladner, in the suit, contend that Chase in conferences with William F. Dukes and Walter W. Dukes, attorneys for Gilbeau and Ladner, added that misdemeanor charges against Gilbeau would eventually be dismissed in exchange for her cooperation.

Chase also allegedly told the attorneys that "the question of state charges was already taken care of" with Sheriff Ronald A. Peterson, that it would be no problem and that no State charges would be filed against either charges would be ined against either Virginia Gilbeau or Gregory Ladner," according to the document.

The document states that the two turned themselves in on April 2 and were subsequently released on $250,000

Both were indicted on that same date for possession of a controlled substance with intent to distribute, which is a state felony charge.

Peterson said the controlled substance referred to in the indictment was 'about 5,000 pounds of marijuana' found March 24 at Gilbeau's residence near Kiln after the sheriff's department assisted federal authorities by obtaining a search warrant.

The request for an injunction also alleges that Peterson and Caranna conspired to harass Gilbeau and Ladner.

'There is no doubt that we're going to deny the charges," Peterson said. "I'm SUIT—Page 6A

The prisoner, James Butler, who is now in the state pentientiary at Parchman, complains in the suit that he was deprived of his Eighth and 14th Amendment rights while contined to the jail.

Butter, was arrested June 8, 1983 on armed robbery charges, according to Petarson, and was sentenced to 10 years in the state pentientiary after pleading guilty. He was housed in the jail until he was transferred to Parchman on Sept. 22, 1983.

The sheriff said several suits similar to Butler's have been filed against the jail in the recent past with some dismissed and two others pending, not including Butler's "I'm sure that the condition of the jail itself has something to do with the number of suits, but I think we have

"They make it very easy for them to sue. They can just about fill out a form and sue anybody they want. I think there should be some kind of control on this. We should be able to file countersuits" against some of" these lefendants." Butler alleges that he was subjected to cruel and unusual punishment, that his rights were violated because the jail has no fire exit and that he was not pro-vided with proper mail delivery, access to a law library and other items. He listed a total of 23 complaints. The list, preserving the plantiff's wording, spelling and purictuation; follows:

School board declares pump emergency

By DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County School Board has declared an emergency situation to speed repair of a water pump at Charles B. Murphy Elementary School.

According to a report made by Superintendent Terrell Randolph at the board's Monday night meeting, the pump has not worked since it was struck by lightning during a recent storm. The school has no water service without the pump.

Murphy said water is needed during the summer for fire protection and use by a maintenance crew currently working at the school.

Randolph said representatives of two firms had inspected the pump and said both told him it would have to be replaced. The board accepted a low price quote of $950 from Braden Well Services of Gulfport and Randolph said he will notify the firm to begin work as soon as possible.

In other business, the board went into executive session to discuss personnel and rehired all current non-certified employees for the 1984-85 school year. These workers include all school employees other than teachers and administrators.

Cafeteria workers and substitute cafeteria workers were also employed. Jewel Green was added as a part-time like this we need to do something," he said Monday night.

In addition to discussing the decision, which was made at the June 29 meeting, the commission voted Monday. to recommend one zoning change and one variance to the board of aldermen for approval.

The zoning change was requested by John C. Chevis Jr. on a piece of property located at Nicholson Avenue and Bryan Street and presently zoned ential one, which allows singlefamily dwellings. Chevis asked that it be rezoned residential three, which allows some office-type businesses and multi-family residences.

The commission approved recommendation of the change because the requested zoning is consistent with the zoning of other property in the orhood, most of which is presently residential-three.

The commission will also recommend a variance requested by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hamilton on a lot on St. Joseph Street in the Gulfside Sites Subdivisio The variance will allow side yards to be 10 feet wide rather than the usual 15 feet to facilitate placement of a house on the

In other business at the June 29 meeting, the commission voted against recommending a change from residential one to residential three requested by Derek Breerwood, C.G. Perilloux Jr. and Frank McKevitt on two lots located 400 feet from Beach Boulevard.

The change was protested by five residents of nearby Adrian Court. However, Dickson said the request was denied because the lots are located in the middle of a residential one area and no indication was given concerning future use of the property.

A seven-foot backyard variance requested by Herman Yarbrough on three lots in the Tippin Subdivision and a side yard variance of about five feet requested by James Slade on three lots in the Gulfside Sites Subdivision were both approved for recommendation.

The commission also appointed Linda Penrose as its new secretary and agreed to post notices of its public hear-ings on the door of Waveland City Hall at least 20 days prior to each zoning meeting.

The next meeting of the commission will be July 31 at 4:45 p.m.

Scuba diving organizational meet slated

A series of nine classes over three weeks on open water scuba diving will be conducted this month at the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce office.

Scott Thomas, program coordinator, said an organizational meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday, July 9 at the chamber.

Complete details for the course will be finalized at the organizational meeting, Thomas said.

Participants must supply their own mask, snorkle and fins, he noted. For information, call 467-7706.

The famed Mole (pronounced molay) Poblano sauce of Ole Mexico, nay, roniano sauce of Ole Mexico, deliciously spicy and chocolaty, came into being long years ago, according to the oft-told legend, when the nuns in a convent in Puebla, Mexico, panicked unon receiving word that the most-exalted Archbishop was on his way to see them.

Rushing about the kitchen and the garden, the nuns gathered and mixed together or ground up just about everything in sight —chill pepers, onlors, tomatoes, spices, garile, even the last of the chocolate, went into the making of a heady sauce, simmered for hours.

And the local bishop lost out on a good turkey dinner, for the good sisters sacrificed their only bird, cutting it into serving pieces, which were browned and simmered, then added to the sauce, and the whole business cooked over a low fire until the turkey pieces were tender.

Part of the legend goes that the Mole Poblano owes its spiciness to the fact that a voung sister scorched a plain mole, and to hide this misfortune, added the chocolate, and spices and raisins and nuts to the sauce served the ar-chhishop.

chbishop.
Of course, just as, with sauces the world over, the ingredients are changed from one place to another, to suite the taste of the cook; rome like it better that hot, others more subtly seasoned.
And, to make this dish more versatile, you needn't cut up and cook a whole turkey. Slices of cooked turkey or bite-size pieces do very nicely, with, of course, less cooking time in the sauce.

A 'time bomb' waiting to explode in Hancock

The superlative best describing the Hancock County Jail is a 'time bomb.'

It is a 'time bomb' waiting to explode, and the casualties will be the taxpayers of Hancock County. The county jail constructed in the mid-30's is outdated, over-crowded, and needs to be replaced.

In July 1980 a New Jail Community Meeting was held, and that was four years ago.

There has been a lot of talk, and one try on a ballot for a new jail and this took almost four years to accomplish.

True the jail bond issue in November was defeated only by the smallest fraction, a new jail is still needing approval.

Many of us can remember paying an extra one-halfcent sales tax in Bay St. Louis for the person who broke his neck while diving off a pier in a court awarded suit. Something like this could happen to all of Hancock County because of the obsolete county jail, and in all probability it will not only be a one-half-cent tax.

The time is now for the citizens of Hancock County to pull together and realize the serious problems we face because of and out-dated jail.

Many events will be happening this weekend around the county.

In Bay St. Louis the Annual Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church's Fair will be on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday in Bay St. Louis.

The fair will contain the many regular events which include very good foods.

We hope to see you at the fair.

Reservations are being taken at the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce for Hancock County Day which is scheduled for August 20 at the World's Fair in New Clarice Gustin, chamber executive director reports she already has enough people to fill two buses and is hoping to have many more.

The Greyhound Buses will take passengers to the fair gates and leave there for the return home.

A total of $30 is for bus and entrance fare. If a person has a fair ticket or pass, it is $17.

Negotiations are underway with Amtrak and as soon as we get more information we will pass it on to you. We realize many folks will use their own cars and several organization buses, this is good. It is our understanding Pascagoula had some 2,000 residents for their day at the fair. We are hoping Hancock County will top this mark by many. It will be a day dedicated to the people of Hancock County at the World's Fair.

We urge all citizens to try and attend the fair on August 20, we have made our reservations.

Persons interested in using the bus service or information can call the chamber at 467-9048.

Small-business Angle

On a hot, humid weekend in June, 110 representatives of the nation's smallbusiness community met in Washington to draw up an agenda of the issues most affecting small business and the recommended solutions. Topping the list of small-business concerns was the the deficit.

The delegates to the Small Business National Issues Conference declared that "spending by the federal government is out of control." They warned that reckless spending is jeopardizing "our families and could lead to the economic and social collapse of our country and its institutions."

They believe that the huge and growing deficit will cause the return of high interest rates, inflation, higher unemployment and a decreasing stanof living for all Americans. The small-business people with whom I met those four days in June were angry and

Five of us carried the concerns of the delegates to the people who can do something about the deficit: We met with White House Chief of Staff James Baker; Mayor Margaret Hance, vice chairperson of the Reagan-Bush Committee; and Charles Manatt, chairman of the Democratic National Committee. We also testified before the Democratic Party platform committee

We delivered the strong message of the conference delegates: "The 'downpayment' proposals now before Congress are woefully inadequate. We must have dramatic action this year, not promises for the next year.'

Concern over the deficit is not new to

MOVING TOWARD

GOOD GOVERNMENT

Mississippians are often heard to complain about their state and local governments—and with good reason.

Within the past few weeks; in fact, State Auditor Ray Mabus told an audience of the Mississippl Economic Council that Mississipplans have not been committed to excellence in government.

But change is under way, and that's a good sign. Mississippl, in 1984, is moving toward good government. Consider these recent developments:

The Supreme Court has mandated a better balance between legislative and executive branches, and the Legislature has responded to that mandate. State government is being reorganized now to reflect the balance reorganized now to reflect the balance required by the Court.

—State Treasurer Bill Cole has just received results of a three-month study of the management of the state's money. The report was prepared by a team of business and professional leaders of the Mississippi Economit Council, and Treasurer Cole is moving to implement needed changes.

—The state's new Board of Education has already met six times in preparation for its July 1 insuguration. And the search is on for a new state superinter.

small business. When the National Federation of Independent Business polled its half-a-million members on the deficit in 1982, 70 percent of those responding favored a freeze on increases in federal spending to reduce

One of the short-time actions called for by the conference delegates is an immediate one-year freeze of all Fiscal 1985 spending at fiscal 1984 levels. The delegates also want future cost-ofliving increases to be less than the increases in the Consumer Price Index.

Our long-term recommendations for our long-term recommendations for reducing the deficit include passing a balanced-budget amendment, limiting federal spending to a lower percentage of the Gross National Product, giving the president more flexibility in his veto power (line-item veto) and adopting the Grace Commission recommendations for business-like management of the federal government.

The Small Business National Issues Conference was important for many reasons, but most important was the opportunity to present a united front on the matter of government red ink. Political leaders in Washington got the message from small-business owners that we are worried about deficits and we want action now to reduce them. (John Sloan, a delegate to the Small Business National Issues Conference, is President and Chief Executive Officer of the National Federation of Independent Business, representing more than half a million small-business men and

THE VIRTUE AND SPIRIT OF OUR COMMON PEOPLE By Ralph Benko

Should the right to vote be based on income or wealth? Columnist Joseph Sobran some mon-ths ago published a syndicated essay posing this question, warning of the danger that in a democracy the indolent will abuse their vote to unjustly tax: to tax and steal for themselves the fruits of the labor of workers and productive members of society, and thus the right to vote must be limited to those with Mr. Sobran's argument was raised, debated and rejected by the men who wrote our Constitution.

In 1787, the wisest statesmen in America gathered together to write the U.S. Constitution, the supreme law of the land. The record of their debates and votes proves that, while they respected the danger Mr. Sobran poses, they judged the risk worth taking.

Delaware's John Dickinson stated the argument for restricting the vote to those with property ("freeholders") in elegant simplicity:

"The freeholders of the Country are...the best guardians of liberty; and are...the best guardams of the restriction of the right to them as a necessary defence against the dangerous influence of those multitudes without property and without principle with which our Country like all others, will in time abound.'

ignorant and the dependent can be as little trusted (as children) with the public interest."

the Convention, Ben Franklin:

"It is of great consequence that we should not depress the virtue and public spirit of our common people; of which they displayed a great deal during the

to the favorable issue of it."

And the debate was closed by South Carolina's John Rutledge:

"It would create division among the people and make enemies of all those who should be excluded."

The convention then voted, seven to one (and one divided, one absent) against restricting the right to vote.

Since then, the political force has been with those committed to broaden ing the right to vote. Of the 16 Amendments to the constitution passed since the Bill of Rights, six have broadened the right to vote: No. 15, prohibited the denial of the vote on account of race, color, or previous condition of ser-vitude; No. 17, providing that people, not the legislatures, of the states should vote for U.S. Senator; No. 19, extending the vote to women; No. 23, giving the residents of Washington, D.C., the right to vote for president; No. 24, prohibited the denial of the vote in federal elections to one who had failed to pay any poll or other tax: and No. 26, extending the vote to 18-year olds.

In 1966, the U.S. Supreme Court held that "wealth, or free paying status has, in our view, no relation to voting qualifications; the right to vote is too precious, too fundamental to be so burdened or conditioned." (Harper v. Virginia Board of Elections.)

The risk of unfair taxation has indeed come to pass. Secretaries and bluecollar workers are now paying taxes at rates once reserved for the very rich. But it is the common person, the "little guy," who is bearing the brunt. And it is they who, in many regions, are supporting a revolt against too-high income and property taxes.

Let us take a spark from the torch of inspiration lit by Benjamin Franklin in 1787. Let us commit ourselves to the virtue and spirit of the common people, who are —and repeatedly prove themselves to be— among the worthiest members of our body politic. Let our political leaders listen closely to the suffering of the common people, and lift heavy hand of taxation from one and all.

What is heat stroke?

It's the most serious of three forms of heat-induced illnesses:

In reaction many white Mississippians rallied behind the 'Southern way of life.' Some 'defenders' murdered civil rights workers.
Mississippi was in a state of siege and few white leaders dared to suggest moderation. Almost none called for accepting racial equality.

Then why has Mississippi changed so much in 20 years?

Because a few leaders urged acceptance, and many Mississippians responded.

The most prominent white leader to call for integration was former U.S. Congressman Frank E. Smith. He was elected from the Delta district for 12

Then, in 1962, he was redistricted into veteran Jamie Whitten's north Mississippi district and defeated, charged by opponents as a liberal associate of John F. Kennedy. Appointed a TVA director, Smith was at last free to reveal his convictions of the

He put his stand into a book, "Congressman from Mississippi." It was autobiographical and apologetic —a plea for Mississippians to "Look Away

As a native of Leflore County and a former Congressman, Smith's credentials as a Mississippian were unimpeachable. Until his book, the public myth held that only outsiders supported integration.

Predictably, the book provoked heated condemnation.

Heber Ladner. Secretary of State. called Smith a ghoul who 'attempts to invade graves and feast on the flesh of the dead.' He was enraged by Smith's condemnation of Theodore Bilbo and predicted, "When the name of Frank Smith is buried in the dusty archives of the world, dedicated historians will still be acclaiming the life and accomplishments of —the stormy petrel from Pearl River County."

Smith was accused of selling Mississippi for a mess of porridge. Some acquaintances wrote to Smith that they felt betrayed.

The mother of a college friend communicated shock and outrage that she had once fed and housed a man holding Smith's opinions. She and other critics sent Smith pages of script interpreting as salvation from blacks and carpet baggers,

Most seemed to feel that Smith had just been led astray. If he would listen to reason, they felt that they could convert him.

But, surprisingly, most of Smith's letters came from Mississippians who agreed with his stand. Many seemed to need to confess their secret association with his ideas. They did so secretly because they feared for their safety among hysterical friends and neighbors.

A Greenwood friend reported the activities of violent hate groups determined to prevent integration and she clos-'I feel sure if someone should get hold of this letter I'm writing you they would probably try to harm me

Another friend depicted her life as under siege. Because her position supporting integration was known, a billboard calling for the impeachment of Supreme Court Justice Earl Warren membership in the John Birch Society was erected near her property. Her Sunday school displaced her as a teacher and she could no longer talk with friends. So she lived in fear of a In this climate, it took courage to ublish "Congressman."

A total stranger wrote from Crystal Springs to say how much he admired Smith's bravery. The writer was a veteran who had encountered black people outside the South on an equal basis and lost his home-taught racism.

He carefully concealed his thoughts from his Mississippi friends. But because of his sense of guilt, he wrote poetically of his admiration for Smith. He said that everyone assumed it required bravery to descend into landing craft and assault a beach. He had done that. Making such assaults did not compare, he said, to the bravery required of Frank Smith in publishing his views. Furthermore, he said, when soldiers return, the bands play and the people But, he concluded, "Any time a white man bucks the situation in Mississipp the bands don't play and the people don't cheer."

Hardly anyone cheered Frank Smith in 1964. He served ten years as a TVA director before returning to run for Congress once again: (1984)

Mississipplans were not prepared then to have him represent them again.

Public safety commission names crime lab chief

Donald Ready has been appointed director of the Mississippi Crime Laboratory by Commissioner of Public Safety James L. Roberts Jr.

Ready, 48, has served as acting director of the Crime Lab since 1980.

"This appointment recognizes Mr Ready's proven record of skillfully administering an agency with an increasingly important role in law enforce-ment in Mississippi," Roberts said.

Roberts made the annoucement Wednesday while addressing the Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers' Association meeting in Hattiesburg. The Crime Lab, established in 1966, offers all law enforcement agencies in the state a full range of forensic services including fingerprint com-parisons, drug identification, ballistics tests, serological and toxicological analyses, and other scientific resources related to processing evidence in criminal cases.

With an authorized staff of 39 people the Crime Lab is involved in excess of 6,000 criminal cases per year.

The Legislature recently increased the scope of the facility's authority by outting under its aspices the operation of the State Medical Examiner's Office.

The medical examiner will be a forensic pathologist capable of providing autopsies and technical advice in homicide investigations.

Ready joined the Highway Patrol in 1963 as a trooper assigned to the Port Gibson area.

A graduate of Benjamin Franklin University in Washington, D.C., Ready had six years experience with the FBI in the fingerprint identification division before returning to his native Mississippi to join the Highway Patrol.
In July 1968. Ready was transferred to the Crime Lab as manager.

In 1974 he was named assistant director of the Highway Patrol's Identifica-tion Section. He returned to the Crime Lab as acting director in 1980 and has accumulated a total of 10 years experience in Crime Lab service.

His appointment to director of the laboratory was made possible when the Legislature amended the state law setting qualifications for the post.

The new qualifications put a greater emphasis on administrative ability than the old qualifications," Commissioner Roberts said. "The old qualifications placed greater emphasis on technical training, which is not necessarily appropriate for this administrative position."

Ready said his major goal as director of the lab will be to shorten the time it takes to process evidence.

"The workload in our serology sec-tion is very heavy," Ready said. "We do not have a large enough staff to handle the volume of cases we receive each month in serology. "Fortunately, many of the cases we receive end in guilty pleas and the results of our examinations are not needed for courtroom presentation.

has created a backlog of cases that need attention," Ready said.

The new director said there has been a noticeable increase in the number of drug-related cases in the past six mon months of the standard of the standard in the

He said this indicated law enforcement agencies are spending more and more time on drug investigations.

Ray named outstanding swimmer

Lonnie Ray of Waveland, swimming with the Mississippi Gulf Coast YMCA Swim Team, took an outstanding individual swimmer trophy at the Hattiesburg Hub Fins Invitational Swim

The event was staged Friday through Sunday, according to Y swimming coach Mark Beau of Ocean Springs.

Ray accumulated 78 points individually placing first in 11 events, and was a member of the Y's relay team which placed first in two events for an additional 56 team points.

He took the best individual swimmer award in the 13- and 14-year-old boys division. The invitational included swimmers from eight through 18 years of age.

Ray placed first in 200-yard in-dividual medley, 400-yard individual medley, 50-yard freestyle, 100-yard freestyle, 200-yard freestyle, 500-yard freestyle, 100-yard butterfly, 200-yard butterfly, 100-yard backstroke, and 100-yard breaststroke.

In addition, the Bay Junior High stu-dent contributed to the first place effort in 200-yard freestyle and 200 yard medley relays.

Beau reported the Ocean Springs Y team, sparked by Ray's outstanding performance, placed first among 11 teams participating with a total of 1,046

At some time in our life, we have all suffered varying degrees of muscular soreness. Weight training can cause more pain than other sports due to the isolation of certain muscle groups and the direct nature of its intensity. Generally, there are two types of muscular soreness: acute soreness and delayed soreness.

delayed soreness.

Acute soreness, as the name implies, occurs during and immediately after the exercise period. Research indicates this acute soreness is due to ischemia, which is the local and temporary deficiency of blood flow to a muscle. As the muscle contracts (near or at maximum levels) the blood flow is porary deheiency of blood flow to a muscle. As the muscle contracts (near or at maximum levels) the blood flow is stopped to that muscle. Because of the ischemia, the metabolic waste products, such as lactic acid and potassium, cannot be removed. These waste products stimulate pain receptors located in the muscle and the pain continues until the muscle is relaxed. The relaxed state allows for blood to remove the waste materials and provide fuel and oxygen for the next contraction. This acute pain is inevitable in strength training. It is an indicator of a sufficient amount of work being performed. It may be hard to imagine, but bodybuilders and powerlifters actually thrive on this pain.

Delayed soreness poses a problem especially for the beginner. This soreness can continue for 24 to 72 hours, depending on the intensity of the workout.

The exact cause or causes of the delayed soreness syndrome are not known. However, three theories have been syndrome are not known. These syndrome are not known. These syndrome is a dvanced:

1. The Torn Tissue Theory. This theory proposes that soreness is due to muscle tears in the muscle fibers.

2. The Spasm Theory. There are three stages to this theory:

a. The muscle contractions cause ischemia,

b. The ischemia leads to a build-up of an unknown pain substance.

pain substance.

c. The pain then brings about a reflex spasm that once again causes ischemia and the cycle continues.

3. The Connective Tissue Theory. This theory claims that pain is the result of damaged tendons and other

Here are some suggestions to prevent or decrease exessive muscular soreness:

1. Stretching helps to prevent soreness and the relief of it when present.
2. Limit the amount of work during the first week of strength training, and then gradually increase the workload.

3. Large amounts of Vitamin C (2.3 grams) can lessen the delayed soreness, Vitamin C is one of the billding blocks of collagen, which makes up fendons and ligaments.

at times, mayflies are important in stream and lake ecology.

More than 500 species of mayflies have been identified in all kinds of fresh water. No population estimate is possible, but at times mayflies are so abundant that hundreds of thousands of them will suddenly mature and fill the air.

denly mature and fill the air.

Anglers catch fish using artificial mayfiles. A check of angling literature by Mercury Outboards' fishing department shows many different imitation mayfly patterns. The earliest known reference to mayflies appears in The Compleat Angler, written by Izaak Walton and published in 1653.

Mayflies are of interest to biologists because the insects are dependent upon water. Mayfly larvae populations are used as indicators of the quality of a lake or stream. Any pollutions are the control of the contr

Art of Descriptive Naming Every time I see someone's name hung on a roadway, mountain peak, park, airport, playing field or other public facility or natural attraction I wonder whatever happened to the pathetically fading art and efficacy of descriptive nam-

Horrah for the good, clean descriptive names of such places as Yellowstone, Rocky Mountain, Grand Teton or the Great Smoky Mountain national parks.

And a cheer for the U.S. Navy's tradition of naming battleships like the Maine and the Mississippi for states of these United States, or gallant cruisers for proud cities of this nation that bestir a certain patriotism of their own.

The suggestive ring of the names of such places as Crater Lake, Mirror Lake, most Americans anxious to pack their camping gear and head into our heartlands over such thoroughfares as the Blue Ridge Parkway or Skyline Drive or Trail Ridge

Botanists were no dullards either as they rose above Latin designations of wild plants in these southern states to compose such names as Black-eyed Susans, Monk's Hood, Indian Pipes, Devil's Shoestrings, Goat's Rue, and Ladies' Tresses. Now that's putting language to work.

But then about the time get all misty-eyed over the im-agery of names, we suddenly come face to face with some of the places and things named-blandly although memorially for certain people for whatever reasons.

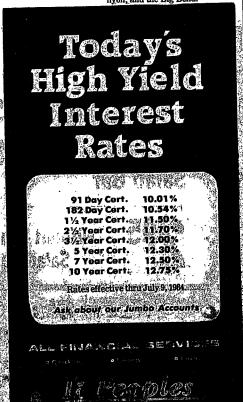

Some years ago I+ well remember the disillusionment remember the distillusionment and affrontery when a certain college playing field was repained again, and again, in memory of personalities lukility in that educational in stingtion. The terrestral bears was fleeting justice, was presented.

Thus in these times the public often is victimized by the application of non-popular but nonetheless politically motivated names which are not necessarily deserved but which merely serve a partisan

We owe it to the Indians of our state for putting descrip-tive names on our maps and into our addresses as practical and descriptive names, such as "Mississippi," an Indian word which means "father of

In more recent times however, our capital city and state each have contributed to the political naming syndrome by changing geographic or plain and simple descriptive names to memorial names for the purpose of honoring political or civic leaders even when those leaders are not necessarily admired by all. But at least we still have our Lookout and Grandfather mountains, Squaw and Shenandoah valleys, Mammoth Cave, the Grand Ca-nyon, and the Big Bend.

Public Safety Department considers tests for motorcyclists

The Department of Public Safety plans to ask the 1985 Legislature to consider passing measures to allow skill testing for motorcycle operators.

James L. Roberts Jr., speaking to the Yazoo City Rotary Club recently, said in the five-month period he has been commissioner of public safety 24 people have died in motorcycle crashes. Six deaths occurred in March, six in april and six in May.

"This state badly needs a law that allows the Highway Patrol, as the driver licensing agency in Mississippi, to administer written and skill tests to motorcycle operators," Roberts said.

"Mississippi is among four of 51 licensing jurisdictions in the nation that does not require motorcycle operators to pass a standard skill or proficiency test or even a written exam specifically designed for them."

"This means that anybody with a valid driver license is allowed to operate a motorcycle whether they know how to or not," he added.

know how to or not," he added.
Roberts said of the more than 1.8 million registered vehicles in Mississippi, 28,198 are motorcycles.
"What we are advocating will put Mississippi in line with 92 percent of the other states and the District of Columbic which require that skill and written bia, which require that skill and written tests be administered to motorcycle operators," the commissioner said.

Roberts said his agency is seeking public support of the measure he feels will save lives.

"Anything we can do to make sure people are properly prepared to operate the vehicle they are going to drive, we must do. We are obligated to curve, we must do. we are onigated to curb the death rate on our highways. This will weed out people who are not equipped to handle motorcycles," Roberts said.

According to the commission, Middle South Utilities and MP&L will have to show the commission whether Grand Gulf will be an economic savings to Mississippi's ratepayers.
"I am totally convinced, more than ever, that this commission must move forward at the completion of these hearings and order a full management audit of MP&L and Middle South Utilities in every construction phase of Unit 1 including contracts, material purchases, and construction management because we cannot sit by and wait for a rate case on a portion of a plant that has a 400% cost over-run," he continued.

Sunburn, heat rashes, insect bites and stings, poison ivy, plus a host of variations of these, can bring summer fun to a grinding halt.

A primer on how to get through the summer with a minimum of trauma includes observations by Dr. Robert Tomsick, Ochsner Clinic dermatologist, who is accustomed to dealing with the ravages of summer in the Gulf South.

SUNBURN

Prevention: Stay out of the direct rays of the sun as far as possible. Use sunscreens, the ones which say on the label that they contain PABA and have a sun protection factor of 15. Be careful of reflected sunlight from water or sand, even if you are in the shade.

People with light skin are particularly vulnerable to sunburn, but anyone can suffer over-exposure, regardless of their skin coloration.

Light-skinned, blue-eyed and blond or red-haired people are also more prone to the long-term danger of skin cancer from over exposure.

Treatment: If the skin is simply painful and reddened, cool compresses and calamine lotion to ease the pain are probably the best approach.

Many of the over-the counter sunburn treatments are expensive and ineffective, Dr. Tomsick says. These preparations can also produce allergic responses which may delay the healing of the skin. If the sunburn is severe enough to cause extensive blistering, you should probably see you doctor.

HEAT RASHES:

Prevention: Heat rashes are caused by high heat and humidity, accompanied by chafing and restricted moisture release from tootight or non-absorbent clothing.

Prevention amounts to staving cool and dry as much as possible, and wearing the proper clothes.
Loose fitting, natural fiber

Loose fitting, natural fiberloose weave garments are the best.

Applying talcum powder or haby powder to areas subject to akin-against-clothing or skin-against-clothing or skin-against-skin rubbing is also recommended.

Treatment: The condition will go away if the causes of the irritation are removed, so there really is little need for treatment. Calamine lotion can be helpful, both for relieving the itch and providing a ing the itch and providing a powder residue of its own.

PRC dorms reported almost full for fall

Pearl River College's dormitories are almost full for the fall semester.

According to Miller Hammill, dean of student affairs, any student interested in living on campus this fall should make application immediately. PRC air-conditioned dormitories can house 595 students.

Room assignments for the fall semester will be made July 15.

"We'll do the best job possible in assigning students to the dorms and roommates they requested," Hammill said. "However, some students will probably be given second choices.'

Hammill said changes will be possi-ble after everyone gets settled in. We will allow students to move around after school begins. I just hope everyone will be patient and cooperate with my department," Hammill said. Male residents will enjoy a renovated Pearl River Hall when school begins in August. Construction work is on schedule for completion of the $400,000 project to the dormitory.

Hamill said if a student is placed on a waiting list a room will probably open up soon after school starts.

Pearl River College provides a com-muter bus system from all points within the six counties which support PRC—Hancock, Jefferson Davis, Marion, Forrest, Lamar and Pearl River Counties
